Issue of Emojis Replacing Words

Emojis replacing words is a pressing issue in modern society; although there are much more important issues to focus on such as poverty and global warming. Firstly, poverty issues around the world are much more urgent and significant compared to issues about emojis. Places around the world, especially in Africa and parts of Asia have people who are starving and in poverty. Humans should not be living in conditions such as those, therefore a situation like this should be a top priority compared to an issue about texting. Secondly, global warming is a big issue that might cause the extinction of the human race in a couple decades. Weather has become more bi-polar and glaciers in the arctic is melting. People should work on finding ways to fix this disaster before it is too late to change anything. Furthermore, our language and communication is evolving, which is a situation which needs attention; although there are much more pressing issues that are currently happening around the world such as global warming and poverty.
